

Business Outline

Silk Div.

We provide “genuine natural” products.

Our division deals with raw silk, which our company initially handled, and Habutae, the highest quality silk, which was traditionally exported to overseas countries, together with other Kimino related goods. Historically, Fukui was named as a “Textile Kingdom” . After 1887, Habutae manufacturing was followed by artificial silk (rayon) developed in the first half of the 20th Century. Afterwards synthetic fabrics such as nylon and polyester expanded its market. During all these historical changes, Fukui has been the fabric manufacturing center of Japan. Our company was not an exception and started its business with raw silk and later expanded to silk fabrics.

Currently, our product range is classified into two categories – raw silk and silk fabrics. The silk fabric that we produce, is used for kimono lining, Douura and Hakkake. We are working on product development in a joint effort with the local weavers and dyers and the fruits are distributed to nation-wide chain retailers and general consumers.
